People with Disabilities and Employment in the Fitness Industry

CALL FOR RESEARCH PARTICIPANTS

Principal Investigator: Dr. Andrea Bundon
School of Kinesiology, UBC

PURPOSE

We are researching the experiences of people with disabilities who pursue employment in the fitness industry.

This research has the potential to guide future fitness industry credential curriculum, hiring processes and workplace practices and contribute to a more inclusive fitness industry for individuals with disabilities.

ELIGIBILITY

If you are a person with a disability who is employed in, or who has pursued employment in the fitness industry, we would love to speak with you. We are looking for people with experience working as instructors or coaches in gyms, fitness and yoga studios or in other similar contexts.
