School of Kinesiology

About the School

The School of Kinesiology offers a wide array of courses to over 1500 students leading to Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctoral degrees. Our curriculum covers a wide range of courses encompassing biological, behavioural, and sociocultural dimensions of human movement, providing students with both the specialization and breadth of learning required to tackle the complex challenges within the field of Kinesiology. Our students study with accomplished scholars who, over the past 33 years, have been awarded research grants from the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council, Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council, Canadian Institutes of Health Research, Michael Smith Foundation for Health Research, Heart & Stroke Foundation, and many others. Our talented, dedicated staff provide the support required for excellence in teaching, experiential learning, and research.

Help Build a New Home for KIN

As a valued member of the KIN Community, please stand in partnership with us to support the construction of a new home for the UBC School of Kinesiology. Joined by the School of Nursing, Integrated Student Health and Wellbeing Services & Programs and components of UBC Health, the Gateway Building will be a central hub for interprofessional collaboration as we develop health solutions for the future. Give today and help us take this pivotal step towards ensuring the success of our students and researchers, and the health and resilience of our communities.

Contact Huda Hamze, Manager, Finance & Administration, UBC School of Kinesiology
